Job Description: We're looking for an intern with experience in copyediting and community management to jump into the Bullhorn fray. If you're a reader, writer, and original – we want you.

While here, you will edit client copy, contribute to content development for client social media, and contribute to copywriting for brand development.

The internship is 10-12 weeks long, depending on the most fitting candidate's schedule. It's part-time, 15-20 hours a week, and it's paid.

Qualifications: Here's what your application should look like:

- + Résumé
- + Writing example
- + Social media examples
- + Statement of interest

We ask that your writing and social media samples be the best reflection of your ability. This means that it doesn't have to be something that you did for a class or for a previous internship. It can be a personal project that shows off your skills. Experience in branded social media is a plus, but it isn't a prerequisite. If you do something really cool on your Tumblr – an original idea – send it in. Experience in branded copyediting is a plus, but it isn't a prerequisite. If you have an eye for details and a flair for language, we want you.
