

An internship in Senator Paul's Washington, D.C. office offers students the opportunity to learn firsthand about the daily operations of the Senate and its interactions with the House of Representatives and the other branches of government. As an intern in the Washington, D.C. office, some of the responsibilities may include answering telephones, sorting constituent mail, attending hearings, giving Capitol tours, and performing legislative research.

We would enjoy having your students participate within the internship program this upcoming 2020 Spring Semester. Our application deadline is October 10th, 2019. I have included below the link to our website for the online application. Please feel free to pass this information along to your University's Internship Coordinator, as well as, Department Chairs.
